Model Portfolio performance and attribution

The Antares Dividend Builder Model Portfolio's annual income yield to 31 January 2021 of 3.3% exceeded the Benchmark yield of 2.4%. Recent company earnings guidance suggests the outlook for dividends is looking better in 2021 and we maintain our objective to deliver income in excess of our benchmark. During January, dividend income was received from Metcash.

Contributing to capital returns was the decision not to own CSL and overweight holdings in Westpac (WBC) and Telstra (TLS). Concerns that the strength of the second wave of the pandemic in the USA would see more declines in plasma collections weighed on CSL. The strong Australian dollar also impacts the translation of US dollar earnings into AUDs. The banking sector was buoyed by the spike in bond yields following the democrat wins in the US Senate election in Georgia. Also supportive have been recent earnings upgrades that have been mostly due to lower bad debts. WBC was the best performer. During January TLS provided prior performance figures based on its new product reporting framework. The new framework was flagged in November 20 and will provide greater transparency, especially as TLS moves to restructure into three legal entities – InfraCo Fixed, InfraCo Towers and ServeCo.

Detracting from returns was the decision not to own Afterpay (APT) and an overweight holding in Amcor (AMC). Buoyant retail sales and increasing consumer confidence combined with APT's entry into the S&P/ASX 20 in December – all seen as positive for APT's share price. Despite upgrading EPS guidance for FY21 and buying back more shares, AMC shares have underperformed. AMC doesn't hit sweet spots such as value or covid recovery and the relatively strong AUD doesn't help.
